

Barton Mobilises Tarcoola & Tunkillia Drilling Programs

HIGHLIGHTS

- Drilling rig to mobilise during the week of 12 July 2021 for large scale planned ~11,100 metre RC drilling program at Tarcoola and Tunkillia Gold Projects
- Tarcoola program expected to commence first, targeting ~5,100 metres, before moving to Tunkillia for a further ~6,000 metres

Barton Gold Holdings Limited (ASX: BGD) (Barton or the Company) is pleased to announce that its planned Tarcoola Phase 2 and Tunkillia Phase 1 drilling programs are underway with the Company's exploration team mobilised to site. The drilling rig is expected to arrive during the week of 12 July 2021.

South Australian-based contractor Bullion Drilling (Bullion) will undertake the programs. Bullion is well known to Barton, having successfully completed the Company's previous Phase 1 drilling at Tarcoola in August 2020. Bullion has significant drilling experience in the region, including over Barton's project areas.

The drill rig is expected to first undertake ~5,100 metres of reverse circulation (RC) drilling at the Tarcoola Project, before mobilising to the Tunkillia Project for a further ~6,000 metres drilling. Barton is also aiming to conduct a high-resolution ground penetrating radar (GPR) survey at Tarcoola in parallel with the Tarcoola Phase 1 drilling program.

Commenting on the upcoming drilling programs, Barton MD Alexander Scanlon said:

"We look forward to the commencement of large-scale exploration works, following previous technical and drilling works that have established new foundations for each of these projects. We have enjoyed our prior successful working relationship with Bullion at Tarcoola, and we expect this to continue as we expand this out to Tunkillia as well.

"With Tarcoola and Tunkillia located only 70km apart, and the benefit of established infrastructure in both locations, the Company is well positioned to complete both programs as efficiently as possible."
